One of the first things we think of when it comes to suffering is that we must avoid it at all costs, but God brings suffering in our lives for the sake of our eternal joy and glory, even if we ...

5 Biblical Reasons Why God Allows Suffering - Beliefnet

It is not logically necessary that since God has not stopped evil and suffering in the world, that He cannot. God could be using suffering for His divine plan, in order to teach, for discipline, because people are free, etc. The existence of suffering does not at all mean that God cannot stop all of it. It means that He simply has chosen not to do so.

If God is all powerful and loving, why is there suffering ...

Make no mistake – Satan is a real enemy of our souls—but some of our pain and suffering is simply a result of living in a fallen world. Fate. There is no such thing as fate or happenstance because we have a sovereign, heavenly Father. The term, sovereign, means “far above, but able to reach.”.

Pain and Suffering: Why Do They Exist?

God is the author of good, but we make moral choices that result in evil. Does Evil Argue Against God? Atheists, skeptics and other critics of Christianity often argue against God on the basis of the reality of evil and suffering. “See,” they say, “since evil and suffering exist, God must not exist.”

How Can God Allow So Much Evil and Suffering? - Focus on ...

In “The Problem of Pain,” C.S. Lewis explains a second point about suffering. “God whispers to us in our pleasures, speaks in our conscience, but shouts in our pains: it is His megaphone to rouse a deaf world.” The painful truth is that God is more interested in our holiness than in our happiness.

If God Exists, Why Is There Evil?

This video gives a fairly clear answer to an age-old question: if God exists and he is all good and powerful, then why do people, especially the innocent, suffer? In his argument, Peter Kreeft basically says that the fact we even say “it’s not fair” is a proof that God exists, because it points to a pre-conceived notion of what justice is; one that we didn’t come up with, but have natural sense of.

If God exists, why is there suffering?

That condition exists when something is taken away. Cold is the absence of heat, dark is the absence of light, and sin is the absence of holiness. So evil is neither a physical thing nor a thing that God created. It is a condition due to sin.

If God Exists, Why is There Evil and Suffering in the World?

the existence of God enables you in a world of shifting sands to call evil 'evil' and to say this is wrong. Another common question, "how can a loving God allow people to suffer?", questions the character and morality of God. "A loving, all powerful God would presumably create a loving world."

If God exists, then why doesn't He just stop evil ...

The perennial problem of suffering can be summarised in a nutshell: "If the Creator is good, a kind father to his creatures, he cannot be almighty in a world of abundant suffering. But if he is almighty, he cannot also be good because he lets suffering continue. Therefore God lacks goodness or power or both.
